WHAT IS FARMING?

It is something more than staying on a farm. It is something more than skinning the soil. It is more than selling hay or potatoes, and bulky crops unanimalized. Farming is a business profession, a practical and scientific operation whereby the soil is used for profit, and improved under the operation. The process of nature must be understood and worked in harmony with the chemis try of the earth and air. The processes of the elements must be understood, if not in their technical terms and language, in that sensible understanding, that commonsense way, that their own advantage and capabilities may be turned to best accounts. The lawyer works by law and precedent, the physician works by symptoms and indications, the mcrebant by rules and observation, the mechanic by measure and capacities. The farmer must work by all rules, observation and experiment. He must be a practical lawyer, doctor, merchant and mechanic of the vegetable, the animal and the trade world about him. He must be a skilled workman in the productive. operative and commercial circles in which his business lies and his sphere of circulation extends.

There is a quiet about the life of a farmer, and a hope of a serene old age that no other business or profession can promise. A professional man is doomed sometimes to feel that his powers are waning. He is doomed to see younger and stronger men pass him in the race of life. He looks forward to an old age of intellectual mediocrity, but the farmer goes, as it were, into partnership with trees and flowers-he breatnes the sweet air of fields. There is no constant and frightful strain upon his mind. His nights are filled with sleep and rest. He watches his flocks and herds as they feed upon the greeu hilly slopes. He hears the pleasant rain fall upon the waving corn, and the rees he planted in his south field rustle about him as he plants others for the children yet to be. - Christian Advocate.

WINTERING YOUNG PIGS.

Pigs born later than the first of Oc. tober will need good care and skill ful management to keep them in a thrifty, growing e ndition through the winter. This is particularly the case if you keep them in large num bers, and it is a good plan to sell all you can before winter sets in. Prople who keep only two or three pigs to ea up the slops from the house can handle their late pigs to better advantage than the large farmer or breeder.
